

The SP 2022-2025, is the second of three consecutive Strategic Plans to guide the organization towards achievement of its commitments – end unmet need for family planning, end preventable maternal death, and end gender-based violence, including harmful practices, which have been successfully positioned into the global, regional and national development priorities and triggered momentum for progress towards their achievement.

This public consultation with youth-led and youth-serving partners and other stakeholders aims to:

- Capture how young people are being impacted by megatrends and the specific opportunities and challenges they face at the local and global level,
- Ensure the UNFPA Strategic Plan 2022-2025 enables UNFPA to more effectively deliver for and with young people, building on the existing Strategic Plan and My Body, My Life, My World,
- Explore innovative pathways and new avenues of collaboration for UNFPA's adolescent and youth programming,
- Draw a clear picture of what success looks like and how UNFPA can make a valuable contribution to ensure rights and choices for young people around the world.

Starting from January 25, UNFPA would like you to be part of our strategic plan development journey for five weeks, to co-discover the most effective and efficient development pathways towards the transformative results and co-create solutions for adolescents and youth all around the world.

To join the discussion, please click here and register on the platform. Once you register, you can find the adolescent and youth programming group here. Please refer to the visual tutorial attached to this email for additional information on access to the online platform.

Please note that the consultation will have different phases focusing on different thematic areas, so please refer to the overview below and plan to access the platform on a regular basis so that you can provide inputs at all stages of the discussion.

If you have questions, please contact sp@unfpa.org and tumer@unfpa.org.

Answer questions

1. After entering the “Discussion” rooms, users will find the specific consultation questions to answer
2. Scroll down and type answers in the comment box, click “Comment” to submit answers

The screenshot shows a discussion room interface. At the top right, there is a list of moderators: Irem Tumer (Technical Analyst), Penninah K.T. (GBV Specialist), Junjian Gaoshan, Heidi Fritze (Technical Analyst), and Rune Brandrup (Regional Youth Specialist Eastern Europe and Central Asia). The main content area displays a question: "Young people today are growing up in a world witnessing political, social, economic and environmental transformations of historic proportions. They have been deeply impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic and the profound shifts it caused in many spheres of life. The UN has identified climate change; demographic shifts; urbanization; the emergence of digital technologies and inequalities as the five global megatrends that are shaping our world, and our collective futures in profound ways. Young people are both positively and negatively affected by these macroeconomic and geostrategic forces. Many actively engage in mitigating the risks these forces bring and tackling the challenges the world is facing." Below the question, there is a section titled "Please answer any one or more of the following questions:" with a link for "Trends, challenges, opportunities:". The question text reads: "This set of questions focuses on the big picture, seeking your views on the big trends and issues that will shape the future. 1. What key developments (including both opportunities and challenges) do you anticipate for the next 9 years (2022-2030) which affect young people directly and that will impact on achieving the 2030 commitments? (Please give both global, regional and local examples.)" At the bottom, there is a comment box with a "Comment" button and an "Add attachment" option.
